Grounds found for assessment appeal

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

A consulting firm hired to look at the figures from Dids-bury's recent change to equalized assessment has found grounds to appeal the tally. Alberta Assessment Equalization Consultants of Edmon-ton was hired by town council last June to look at the figures compiled to come up with the town's $22 million assessment after a petition was started complaining about the huge increase in taxes for some property owners. The town's total assessment before the change to equalized assessment was $13 million.

Jean Craven started the pe tition after he taxes increased 77 percent, largely due to a jump in education taxes collected by the provincial gov emment Didsbury's town adminis-trator Evan Parliament said the consultants discovered grounds to appeal the assessment on approximately $6.2 million.

Most of the $6.2 million is in commercial property," Par-liament said. "So that is why we believe it will deal mostly with the education tax.

Because the appeal, which will be heard by the Alberta Appeal Board in October, could result in a reduction of education taxes from Didsbury, Par-liament said town council is expecting opposition to their appeal by the Department of Parliament said if the appeal board grants the reduction in the assessment, town council would have to decide how best to handle the tax bill."

"It could mean Didsbury ratepayers will see a reduction in their 1996 taxes," Parliament said. "If it simply relates to a reduction in the education taxes, then that is how they could handle it. But if it also impacts on the town's taxation, then town council will have to decide how to handle that because it could mean they will have less money for

In the meantime, Parliament said letters from residents supporting the appeal are encour-aged and can be dropped off at the town office. The letters and the petition will be brought to the appeal board for the hear-

Didsbury postal service celebrates 100 year anniversary

by Elaine Wilson

In the early days of home-steads and settlers, the primary gathering spot in a small town, aside from the train station, was the post office. As the postal service outlet in Dids-bury celebrates it's 100th year, that much has not changed.

"We still get people coming in and discussing things," post-master Chris Meyer said. "For some of the older people, it's the highlight of their day to be able to come to the post office and see friends.

Meyer has been postmaster for nine years, since August of 1986, while the post office dates back to January 1, 1895. To celebrate the occasion, postal staff held an informal celebration at the post office with coffee, cake and reminiscing on August 18. The early particu-lars of postal service in Dids-bury are sketchy, but many remember the post office building when it was located in the Potentials (formerly Burnside Jewellers) building. The current post office build-ing, constructed in 1960, was home to both the postal service and the local Department of Veterans Affairs. The contract price was $45,874 and, ac-cording to a newspaper report printed in 1959, included features like "a writing desk for the public". Current changes, aside from additions to serv-ices offered, include renovation work

"We're putting new windows in," Meyer said, "And new doors. We're painting the trim, and eventually we'll be doing the floors as well."

The addition of a bank of new postal boxes (bringing the total to 1299) recently reduced the waiting list from two years to nine months. There are no plans to switch over to residential 'super boxes' as Olds

'We're just sticking to what ve got," Meyer said, adding, 'I don't think there's any room for any more boxes

The first postmaster, J. pointed Dewier, was succeeded by D.S. Shantz, W. Hunsperger, William Morgan, C. Wrightson, W. Curie, J.A. Sinclair, Denis De Veaux, acting postmaster Brenda Bullis and current postmaster Chris Meyer. Little is known of the Meyer's

Council split on re-election bids

by Janice Harrington

Didsbury's current Town Council has made a nearly even three way split on decisions to seek re-election in the next municipal election with two deciding against, two for and two still undecided.

Mayor Ray Lea and Council-lor Gayle Veno have made definete plans to seek another term in their respective offices when the municipal election is called this October. Both said they are interested in following through on the job they started in the previous term.
"Basically the biggest reason for my decision to re-run was because we made so many changes," Veno said. "I would like to be one of the people who sees them implemented and really helps to change the future of the town."

Mayor Ray Lea said he chose to seek re-election in the hopes of finishing what he started.

"It feels like we are just get-ting into (the swing)," he said. "We have learned so much and started lots of things I would like to see finished.

Lea said if re-elected, this would be his last term because he feels six years in an elected office is enough.

As for the decisions not to run for office again, both Dan

Peters and Ed Vermunt said they made the decision to focus on other things in their Peters, who entered a new career in real estate sales while a part of council, said he plans to concentrate on his clients.

"I know the commitment that is invovled (in council)," he said. wish I could do more but I also have a commitment to my clients.

Vermunt, on the other hand, said he wants to spend time travelling and enjoying life with his wife. Turning 70 this year, Vermunt said he wants to take advantage of his good health and see the country.

The remaining three coun cillors, Vance van Dam, Rod Collinge and Willard Swalm, said they are still considering their options before declaring their intentions publically.

Collinge, who has been called away from council duty much of this last year, said he is still deciding if his job com-mitments will allow his involve-ment on council. Willard Swalm saidhe is talking with a number of town residents to find out their views on his re-election choice and Van Dam said he likely won't declare his inten-tions until the nomination deadline of September 18.

Crop outlook good despite hail damages

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

The combination of wet and unstable weather has led to an extremely busy year for the crop insurance office, but Alberta Agriculture officials are still hopeful of a good quality

A spokesperson at the Al-berta Hail and Crop Insurance office in Didsbury said they have been snowed under by the calls from farmers hailed out over the summer and are still expecting more calls before harvest, but Mark Olson, crop specialist with Alberta Agriculture in Olds said crops remaining can still be top quality.

"Damage has been really sporadic all summer," Olson said. "One area gets hailed out and then you go a quarter mile and they have a beautiful crop."

Olson said he expects most crops will be a mixed bag of quality because of the weather and the amount of lodging. He expects second growth will create a serious problem when it comes to

This has been a tough year, he said. "But if we get a week and a half of really good weather, warm weather, things could be great."

cided to throw their hat in the ring, only one candidate reached would confirm for cer-tain that they will run for council in the next election. Dorothy Moore said she will run for council in the October election while she is taking a Masters of Business Adminstration course at the University of Cal-

Moore said the course is designed around work schedules, so she will have plenty of time to dedicate to the job if elected.

"The town has been so sup-portive of me, this is a way to give back," she said. "I feel I have lots to offer by way of expertise in a few areas.

Didsbury's returning officer Enid Gardiner said no nominations papers have been turned in as of yet. The deadline for nominations is Sep-tember 18. The election will be held one month later

Olson said the determining factor in the crop condition will be frost because of the late harvest times for this year

One of the crops which has suffered dramatically this year because of the rain has been hav. Olson said farmers are having difficulty getting the hay off the fields because of the rain and the condition has suffered as a result.

But hay processors in the area aren't too worried yet about their business

Henry Braam of Champion Hay Processors said they are still getting good quality hay from areas north of Edmonton and southern Alberta.

"But because of the wet weather, it is going to be harder to get good quality hay," Braam said. "But it is hard to say what we can expect until the second cut is off the field. But we have had three or four years of really wet weather and we have managed all right."

But Braam does expect hay prices will rise not only because of the shortage of good quality hay but also because of changes to the Western Grain Transportation Act.

We will still have an increase in rail rates and that is going to make things more pricey, especially for overseas

Snack Shack attack questioned

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

A break in at the Carstairs Community Golf Course has left RCMP asking for the public's assistance.
Constable Janice Mann of the Didsbury RCMP detachment said they are looking for anyone with information about a break in at the Snack Shack, a concession store at the golf course

Constable Mann said a culprit or culprits broke into the store sometime in the late evening or early morning between August 3 and 4. Food was stolen from the store and some damage was done to the building.

Anyone with information about the break in is asked to contact the Didsbury RCMP or CrimeStoppers.

A 19-year-old Olds man was fined $300 despite pleas for a conditional discharge on an obstruction charge

The man was charged by Olds RCMP after a break and enter incident at an apartment building in Olds. The crown prosecutor told Provincial Court Judge A.P. Demong that the man implicated two youths in the break and enter, one his younger brother, when questioned by the RCMP. He gave a statement to the RCMP stating his responsibility in the incident but later recanted when told he would be charged with break and enter

The man was fined $300 despite pleas from his defence attorney for a conditional dis charge. Lawyer Brian Forestell claimed the young man was merely trying to protect his younger brother, not deliberately mislead the police. But Judge Demong agreed with the prosecutor that a conditional discharge did nothing for the public interest.

A man charged with driving while over the legal limit, a charge laid after a citizen complained to police about bad driving and a passenger at-tempting to pull a red flag off the back of a moving logging truck, was fined $600 and had his licence suspended for six months.

Marty Craig was charged July 16 after RCMP pulled over his car in Olds after receiving a complaint about a driver tailgating and driving badly. Craig submitted to a breathalyzer by RCMP and was then charged.

A Caroline man who was just released from prison will be heading back there after a drinking and driving incident last week

James Goodwin was sen-tenced to nine months in jail and fined $2650 after he pleaded guilty to driving while disqualified, driving while over the legal limit, damaging a police vehicle and operating an uninsured and unregistered vehicle

The charges arose last week when Sundre RCMP, who set up a road block near Caroline in hopes of catching a vehicle suspected in a break and enter incident, tried to pull over Goodwin about 4:40 am August 22.

Goodwin passed through the RCMP roadblock, later stopping about 200 metres away. When he was arrested and put into the back of the police cruiser, he kicked out a rear window

Goodwin had just been re leased from prison after spend-ing a year there for a danger-ous driving conviction.

Besides the time in jail,

Goodwin's driver's licence was also revoked for two years, consecutive to any other driving prohibitions on Goodwin's record.

Provincial Court Judge A.P Demong also refused to allow Goodwin time to pay on his fines, instead sentencing him a further three months in

A young offender with no place to go will spend two weeks in jail for stealing $5 from his foster parent's wallet. The youth, who cannot be named, was charged with theft and breach of probation for taking the cash while his foster father was taking a shower. The theft was discovered be-cause the youth accidentally dropped the father's Visa card when he took the cash.

Judge A.P. Demong sen-tenced the youth to a year's probation for the theft and 14 days in jail for breach of proba-tion after he pleaded guilty. The youth, who had been under the care of Social Services, will have no where to go once he is released from prison. He was given to Social Services after his parents withdrew their support. Social Services also withdrew their support after these current charges

A man was sentenced to 90 days in jail and one year's probation after he pleaded guilty to assault causing bodily harm in Didsbury Provincial Court last week

Hughie Booth was told he could serve his sentence in weekends after he pleaded guilty to the charge. Booth, who said he was under extreme pressure after the murder of his father last Christmas, was charged after he as saulted his sister near Olds in

The court was told the assault took place after Booth's truck broke down on the high-way and he started arguing with his sister.

During the argument, Booth grabbed her by the hair and dragged her around the road. After she escaped and tried to lock herself into the truck, he climbed into the back of the truck and kicked in the back window and continued to as sault her. The woman suffered bruising and hair loss as a result of the assault.

Judge A.P. Demong agreed to allow Booth to serve his sentence on weekends after Booth told him he had recently gained full time employment. As a condition of his probation, Booth is also expected to undertake counselling to deal with the death of his father and for alcohol abuse.

we watch the news or read a newspaper, every time it can be seen. Public outrage over a crime and groups demanding tougher laws and tougher sentences. Being outcrime perceived as particularly heinous and demanding blood in repayment has become very fashionable.

This trend made quite an impact on our justice system. Harsher sentences are being imposed for a variety of crimes, especially those seen to be "the hated crime of the week".

Take for example crimes against women. Men convicted of beating their wives get much harsher sentences than in other assault cases because wife abuse has become a fashionable issue. Putting aside the reality that assault is a heinous crime regardless of victim, the public is demanding harsher treat-ment of those found guilty of spousal assault as compared to other crime without considering if the demand for retribution serves the interest of justice.

have judges and prosecutors under pressure from various groups to ask for and to impose harsher and harsher sentences regardless of any mitigating circumstances. The question becomes not what this convicted person deserves based on the evidence, but instead what does the public expect?

There is an inherent danger in that approach to dispensing the blind justice upon which our court systems are supposedly Take for example the recent case here at home of a 19-year-old youth who pleaded guilty to obstruction. His lawyer asked for a conditional discharge. He was young and had tried to protect his younger brother but when push came to shove, he confessed his lie and then pleaded guilty. A criminal record could impact his immigration status in the country. He had no record. Yet instead of allowing the young man the opportunity to make up for his mistake and to not be tagged with a criminal record for the rest of his life, the prospector and ultimately the record for the rest of his life, the prosecutor and ultimately the judge argued that a discharge, even a conditional one, didn't do anything for the public good. "It will look like he got away with it" the judge said. So instead, they fined him and hung him with the spectre of a record which could negatively impact him the rest of his life. the rest of his life.

Was it justice to determine a young man's fate by the reaction of the public?

That kind of reactionary thinking brings to mind the worst part of the American justice system which elects its top court officials. Here we have the chance for justice to be bound up in popularity. Judges and prosecutors risk thinking not about in popularity. Judges and prosecutors risk thinking not about justice but instead about making the news, getting their names know. So much for the anonynimity of justice. Sentences and judgements are based on the public feeling instead of the facts of a case. If a judge finds against the public opinion, he or she can kiss their job goodbye in the next election. Would you want to face trial on those grounds? While the court system cannot be above democracy, it must be above the whims of the moment in society. After all, it is the jobs of the court only to impose the law. It is the job of the legislators, the ones we elect, to create those laws. If the public doesn't like the law the way it stands, we should not picket outside the courthouse, we should be on the lawns of Parliament Hill instead

The Historic Barn World

Historic barns form a vital part of our nation's heritage. From the days when our nawas dependent on farmers for its stability and free-dom, the family farm has been a vital image in the Canadian consciousness. As the main structures of farms, barns evoke a sense of tradition and security, of closeness to the land and community with the people who built them. Even today the rural barn raising presents a forceful image of community spirit. Just as many farmers built their barns before they built their houses so too many farm families look to their old barns as links to their past. Old barns, further-more, are often community landmarks and make the past present. Such buildings embody ethnic traditions and local customs, they reflect changing farming practices and advances in building tech-nology. In the imagination they represent a whole way of life

At The Historic Barn World this important part of our heritage will live on for genera tions to come. The carefully selected barns will be restored and so will the dynamic life that surrounded the barns.

There will be animals and old time barn dances. One barn has been designated as the Barn Pavilion. Here you will find a collection of barn portraits from across western Canada as well as the heritage, artifacts and some sensational barn stories

Our mission is to preser and bring to life the rich architectural legacy and heritage of historic barns so our youth can explore the unique experience that radiated through and around these barns while sen iors and adults reminisce and share a walk down memory

The Historic Barn World Concept stems from a profound look at the cultural, artistic, architectural and historical components of historic barns

The Historic Barn World aspires to become western Canada's "Barn Haven" for a humane, sustainable education and a meaningful dynamic historical attraction for visitors of all ages

Concern growing over elder care

Presently, a new cottage industry has sprung up across Alberta and even across Canada. Entrepreneurs are setting up special care homes to house the frail, dependent elderly. They do not have to fear regulations or monitoring. They are not held accountable to ensure that proper, ethical care will be given to these vulnerable persons. Care is given by untrained persons. Medica-tions are administered by persons hired off the street long as they have less than four residents, they do not even require a licence.

From Peace River to
Lethbridge, long term care beds are being closed, despite an increasing senior population. This is resulting in a rapid proliferation of these elder care, foster homes.

What is the reality of these homes? From Surrey, B.C. we have reports of such a care home owned by a registered nurse. Paid staff are on hand between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. After those hours, the elders ends meet are on their own, with no one to attend to their needs such as reluctant to complain. She states that often, when she arrives, the elderly are in shocking condition. She works in two such care homes to make

From Calgary we have reports of a number of such homes, from which have emanated complaints of abuse such as withholding prescription medications as punishment, residents lying in soiled cloth ing and bedsheets all night, alleged theft from resident's bank accounts. One resident in a wheel chair lay pinned under his chair all night after falling. One man claimed he was locked out of his residence for three days as punishment. The Calgary alderman who urged the city to make regulations concerning these homes stated: "There is ample evidence people are being hurt, threatened and neglected."

As a caring, civilized society our conscience must be stirred, indeed, we are our brother's keeper. We urge concerned citizens to say no to special care homes, voicing their objection to Premier Klein, the Minister of Health, Ms. McLellan and their MLA. We cannot allow this frightening, callous and immoral concept of care to pro-

What are seniors eligible for?

Dear Editor:

Members of the Alberta Lib eral Caucus have found that many seniors are unaware that they may be eligible for benefits under the new Special Needs Assistance program an-nounced by the provincial gov-ernment April 27, 1995. Given that only $1 million has been put into the program to meet the needs of Alberta's 270,000 senior citizens, it comes as no surprise that the government has failed to tell Alberta seniors about this program.

A few advertisements were placed in senior's newspapers and newletters, but the cern Grant Mitchell and the Alberta Liberal Caucus has is for those seniors who are alone and isolated, for those seniors not connected to a senior's or ganization or on a mailing list. The seniors most in need and at risk tend to be those least likely to be aware of the pro-

To be eligible for a benefit the applicant also must be 65 years of age or older must be an Alberta resident, have lived in the province for the last 90 days, be a Canadian citizen or lawfully admitted permanent resident of Canada, and have income that falls within the following limits:

· Single seniors with total annual income from all sources not over $22,616.

· One-senior couples with total annual income not over $32,340.

· Two-senior couples with total annual income not over $35,332

People in these categories may be eligible for a benefit under this program.

Finally, to claim a benefit seniors must be able to show that the government's cuts to senior's programs and benefits over the last three years have seriously affected their ability to meet basic needs.

A 17 percent reduction in seniors' programs, a 50 per-cent increase in drug costs and increased rental rates for ac commodation have put many seniors in dire straits. The gov ernment has a responsibility to inform all seniors that this program exists. This was not done. Premier Ralph Klein and his provincial counterparts are back at their desks after a meeting in Newfoundland. The premiers, minus Quebec's Jacques Parizeau, called on Quebeckers to support federalism and they called on Ottawa to hand over more power in the name of "flexible feder alism'

Perfectly sensible. Said the premier, "If there is going to be a reduction in federal payments, then give the provinces power to deliver services in the most efficient way

Or not. After Alberta's turf battles with Ottawa, it's heresy, or high treason, or both. to suggest that maybe we have as much power as we need. But with Quebec on the eve of a referendum, some are suggesting it's time to stop bleed-ing the federal government of it's ability to steer the country.

It may already be too late. It's easy enough to measure where the power is, by simply checking each government's share of total public sector spending. After World War II, Ottawa's share was 85 per-cent. Over succeeding decades, it slipped steadily

Pierre Trudeau, a staunch advocate of a strong central

Brian Mulroney, trying to outdo Trudeau as a constitutional healer, gave away federal spending powers like gimme caps at a farm dealership, recaps at a farm dealership, re-opening the constitutional is-sue by explaining to Quebeckers that they'd been screwed out of their rightful spending powers.

Federal finance ministers always provide enthusiastic help in unloading spending powers, to get rid of expensive responsibilities like post sec-ondary education. Media consultants are quick to point out that a PM graciously doling out federal powers to the provinces will appear on the news as a wise and generous papa. Premiers will allow as how it rep resents the spirit of federalprovincial co-operation.

There's one problem, if you like the idea of having a country. Ottawa's share of all public sector spending on Canada is now under 20 percent. Guess how many federal states have survived with a share under 20 percent. Zero. There was an East African federation that tried that kind of flexible federation for a while, but everyone got bored and went home Some Caribbean nations tried too. Remember that new country? I didn't think so.

It's not just a matter of money. When young politicians go forth to seek their political fortune, they have to choose federal or provincial politics. They go where the action is, where the power is and their where the power is and their arrival in provincial capitals reinforces the rush toward ten squabbling fiefdoms. It also means the federal government isn't getting it's share of tal-ented leadership, the kind of smart, tough people clever enough to pilot the country using ridiculously small economic levers like steering an ocean liner with an oar.

This is not part of some world trend. Canada began with a strong central government. and provinces that amounted to administrative districts. South of the border, thirteen powerful states sent delegates to something called the Continental Congress. Now Washington wields most of the power south of the 49th and the provinces run the show north of the border.

No matter how starved and ineffectual the national government becomes, no premier will ever step for-ward and give some back.

Is it too late? Jacques Parizeau gleefully insists that the process has long since passed the point of no re turn. You would be hard-pressed to find anyone in Alberta who would publicly support stopping that process, or even slowing it down.

A renaissance man

· Local cattle rancher to show his artistic side at PaSu

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

A cop by trade, a cattle rancher by love and a poet by desire. The combination may sound a bit odd, but it is the perfect description of one of the up and coming artists in the cowboy poetry scene.

the cowboy poetry scene.

Morrie Goetjen always had a love for poetry but felt perhaps his love for the ancient art of expression was somewhat stifled as he was growing up in Calgary and working his father's cattle ranch near Cre-

"I think I was discouraged by my teachers, had my creative side stifled," he said. "I started poetry in grade school but after that I never wrote again."

That is until about two years ago, when finally haunted enoughby the strains of a poem in his head, he took up a pen and wrote his very first cowboy poem, "Rubber Boots".

The genre was perfect for Goetjen who loves the cowboy way of life and had always dreamed of making his living raising cattle. With his career choice with the Calgary Police Service, a job he took at age 19, Goetjen was also able to follow that dream. In 1984, he purchased his first quarter in the Westcott area and has loved every minute since.

But it isn't just his love for cattle which has drawn him into the art which is sweeping the country and western scene. Goetjen said he has long been a fan of poets like Robert Service ("The Shooting of Dan McGrew") and Baxter Black and also the history of the wild west. It was only natural for him to combine his two loves into one, creating some humorous and touching pieces which appeal to a broad range of audiences.

"The audience tends to be very rural and traditional (for cowboy poetry)," he said. "But I think there is something for everybody not just people born and raised on farms or ranches."

As to the growing success of the cowboy poetry scene, Goetjen feels the popularity comes from a group disenchanted with the "new country" music.

"People who really enjoy the traditional country and western music don't recognize what's being played on the radio today and I think they are trying to get back to (the traditional," he said. "I think cowboy poetry fits right into that. It fits into the guidelines of traditional country music, who's origins where, by the way, po-

An example of the story telling, heart plucking, traditional values Goetjen speaks of are included in one of his earlier

"Dad's Out Sortin' Cattle".

Now sortin' cows at our ranch Was an ordeal, ther's not doubt. Whether it was cuttin' culls from keepers Or sortin lame ones

And it didn't matter what I knew Or the knowledge that I had, There was one boss in our corral And that was dear old Dad.

You see Dad, he knew all the cows Their history to a 'T' He knew the dam, he knew the sire The whole damn pedigree.

He knew the ones to watch out for And the ones that crawled the fence And he gave his orders, loud and clear Though they made such little sense

Like, "Hey, you fool! Watch that gate! Now let her have her head! No! No! Dang-blammit not that gate! The one "long side the shed!

You're movin' 'em away too slow Can you go a little faster? Now hustle up and head 'em off! And no you've gone and passed 'er!

Oh! There she is, right in front! Standin' by the gate! Now come around and haze her in Geez, hurry, don't be late! Now walk behind her nice 'n

Now walk behind her nice 'n slow By golly! Ther's her calf! Take the pair, if you can, No point in takin' half!

Well do your best to get 'em all At least a matchin' set! And there's that lame one from last spring! She's open now, I'll bet!

No! No! Golldarnitall! Take a look at where I point! It's that white-faced cow, that's got the limp And I'm sure it's her stiflejoint!"

Well the air turned blue sortin' cows It was Dad's familiar tune Young or old, seasoned or green No one was immune.

He'd roar his orders above the noise And his swear words, they were varied You might think that I'm lyin' to ya, But his voice has always carried.

Well, then one day a silence fell Upon our old corral And the cows were quiet and the music dropped As did our own moral.

See, Dad was called away beyond To that rangeland up across But I have not doubt, he just took over And made himself the boss.

I can hear him shoutin' oh, so loud "St. peter, watch that gate" And "Get behind that snotty cow Geez, hurry, don't be late!

"You're movin' 'em away too quick! You'll startle 'em sure as heck! We'll have cows a'bustin' fences, And we're sure to have a wreck!"

"And use that gate to head 'em off And slam it hard!" He'd vow "And knock off some of them pearly things 'Cuz they're scaring all the cows!"

Here is a recipe that would be great in lunch boxes:
Microwave Peanut and Chocolate Squares

In a bowl combine 2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats 1/3 cup brown sugar

1/4 cups chocolate chips

In a separate bowl stir together

1 egg

¼ cup corn syrup

¼ cup peanut butter 1½ teaspoon vanilla

Stir into oats mixture until evenly coated.

Pat mixture evenly into a greased 8 inch square microwaveable dish. Microwave on High for 6 minutes, rotating every two minutes. Let cool on rack for 10 minutes; cut into squares. Makes 16 squares

Ribbons abound for saddlebred owners

Special to the Review

The Western Canadian Classic Horse Show and Futurity held at Red Deer Aug. 19 and 20th, reaped a host of ribbons for local American Saddlebred stables. The Futurity is a special event in which a foal is registered before it is born. It is shown as a weanling, a yearling and a two-year-old in hand, and as a three-year-old under saddle.

Southside Saddlebreds, ownedby Jim and Louise Large, won the majority of ribbons in the Futurity events, coming home with 1st and 2nd for weanling, 1st and a champion for 2-year-old, 2nd for 3-year-old, Grand Champion of the Futurity with their weanling, "In Living Color" and Reserve Grand Champion with their 2-year-old, "Room to Move". In addition the Larges were successful in taking 2nd and 3rd for Saddlebred foal of the year, 3rd in the yearling class plus other ribbons in riding and driving events in the Classic. Cloverleaf Stables with nine Cloverleal Stables with nine horses in training entered in the Classic, collected 60 ribbons in riding and driving, ranging from 1st to 6th, a reserve champion pleasure type mare, "Rapture Grove Mercedes", owned by Archie Hurst and a champion show type mare "Supreme Assets", which also took Grand Champion for the show. This mare is owned by Sandra Graves and trained by Archie Hurst.

Most of these horses will be shown at the All Breed Fall Classic in Didsbury on Sept. 2nd and 3rd in the Memorial Arena. This will be the last show of the season.

Back to an adopted home
Proving you just can't get too much of a good thing, former exchange student Ira Middendorf (1994 DHS grad) couldn't wait to get back to Canada. She brought along a friend from her native Germany, who enjoyed her first visit to Canada immensely, pronouncing it to be "just awesome." The girls arrived in Canada on July 17 and flew home August 23. In the interim, they bought a car and packed in visiting with old friends and family and as much travelling around western Canada as time allowed. "For me, it's just great to be back," Middendorf said, adding that travelling was something she never tired of. "I'll be going back to school in Germany this fall, but I plan to come back to Canada soon, maybe in 1997. First I hope to be able to go to Scotland."

Brenda Hemming September's Terry Fox Run

The organizing committee for the annual Terry Fox Run is in the planning stages for the local leg scheduled for Sunday, September 17. Registration will begin at 12:30pm with the run to take place between then and 4pm. This year marks the 15th anniversary of the Terry

Fox Run. In addition to the regular course, an alternate five km course will be available, with both the start and finish being the Memorial Complex. In 1994 Didsbury runners raised $2,082.50. The goal in 1995 is to surpass last year's totals in both money raised and runners participating. A Terry Fox Run T-shirt will be awarded to the participant who raises the most money in 1995. "The committee is very proud of all the people who came out to participate," Brenda Hemming said, adding, "We look forward to the community's continued efforts in 1995." Didsbury ball player Chad Krebs got a little taste of the big league earlier this month when his fastball team. the Calgary Royals Midget A team, went to Winnipeg to compete in the nationals. The team qualified to compete in the nationals by taking a silver medal at the provincial competition in Calgary. The victory in Winnipeg was even sweeter for the Royals when they managed to beat out the team who took the gold medal in Calgary. They then walked away with a silver medal to make them one of the top teams at their sport in Canada. Veterinarian makes plans to return home

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

A former Didsbury High School graduate who went on to a career in veterinary medicine is making plans to return home and open his own vet clinic.

Gord Krebs, graduate of DHS in 1982, said he has purchased the former Didsbury Vet Clinic building and will open his own vet clinic this September 1. Called Krebs Veterinary Called Krebs Veterinary Clinic, Krebs said his practise will focus on all sorts of animals, not just large livestock which was his speciality in school.

"My main interest is in large animals - cattle and horses but I plan to have a mixed practise," he said. "I hope to eventually hire someone to work with me which will allow me to specialize later."

me to specialize later."
Since graduating from the University of Saskatchewan's Veterinary Medicine program, Krebs has worked in Sundre at Pioneer Vet Services and most recently in Brooks where he began doing government meat inspection and other animal health related services for IBP and then full time at the Brooks Vet Clinic. His degree includes the General Proficiency Award as the top student in diagnostics and practical application, the Bovine Medicine Award and the General Clinical Medicine Award.

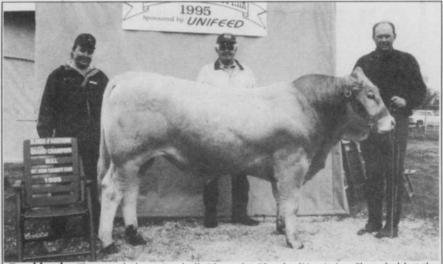

Three years ago, Krebs purchased the former vet clinic building with a partner. They practised part-time as a business, but the partnership dissolved, leaving Krebs with sole possession of the building. He is currently working on renovations to the building, which, once completed, will have ambulatory and full in-clinic services as well as a complete surgery for large and small animals. He also plans to sell dog and cat food and feature other nutritionals and pharmaceuticals.

One of the features Krebs is looking forward to offering will be seminars, mostly aimed at the cattle industry.

The Krebs Vet Clinic will open September 1 at 13 Co-op Road. The business can be reached at 335-3519.

Crop Specialist, Cereals and Oilseeds

Now that harvest is approaching, many people are wondering about fall weed con-trol. The fall weed control decision should include considera tion of residue management, erosion control and moisture trapping and, perhaps more importantly, the type of weed to be controlled.

To simplify the control proc-s, weeds can be classified into three types: perennials (Canada thistle, quackgrass, toadflax, etc.); winter annuals (stinkweed, shepherd's purse, flixweed, etc.); and annuals (wildoats, buckwheat, lamb's quarters, etc.).

Perennial weeds will respond well to fall spraying. There are two approaches that can be taken, either spray pre-har-vest or post-harvest. Pre-harvest applications of glyphosate have proven extremely effective against perennial weed populations. Pre-harvest application of herbicide may also speed up harvest by eliminat-ing green plant material from the fields. Post-harvest weed control can also be quite effective under certain conditions. Before you spray it is impor-tant to check that the plant is actively growing; in a stubble situation check for new growth there the leaves join the stems. If the plants are not actively growing the spray will not be effective. Glyphosphate and dicamba work well on perennials. With glyphosphate you will require about three to five days frost free after application in order to achieve good control; dicamba either alone or in mixes with glyphosphate requires a two week period with out killing frost.

Winter annuals germinate in the late summer or fall and over winter in rosettes. These plants are usually quite susceptible to fall spraying. If winter annuals are your main prob lem, then fall spraying with 2,4-Dcan provide effective control. Chemical control of winter annuals may reduce or delay your tillage requirements next spring and will also allow you to leave your residue cover intact to trap snow and protect the soil. Tillage can also be used to control winter annuals, but tillage will reduce your residue cover, reducing snow catch and increasing your erosion risk.

Annuals may be killed with fall spraying or tillage, how-ever by early fall they have generally done whatever dam-age they are likely to do this year. Most of the mature plants will have set seed and the immature plants, including vol unteer grain, will soon be killed by frost. Spraying and fall tillage will generally kill the plants but be of little value as the plants are presently growing slowly and thus water and nutrient loss is minimal. If the plants are left they will be killed by frost and provide the soil with protection from erosion and also trap snow moisture.

As we examine fields with harvest in mind we also have an opportunity to consider weed control. Know what weed species are present and make your decision based on current conditions in the field and with the expected weather conditions in mind.

Both tillage and spraying require an investment of time and money which will not show any return until next year. You will have to weigh the costs of chemical control against the effects of tillage and the costs of having weeds present or the benefits of having your stubble standing to protect your soil. The assessment of your weed problem is necessary. Evaluate your situation and fit your fall weed control plan into your overall weed control plan for your operation.

For more information on fall weed control, contact the Three Hills district office of Alberta Agriculture

THERE'S NO ALTERNATIVE

TO CONCRETE

Concrete is the basement building material with all the advantages.

It's a proven performer, Rugged Tough, Durable. A concrete basement will never burn or rot.

And concrete is safe. Qualitycontrolled, concrete needs no toxic chemicals which may be hazardous to building occupants.

Concrete is an energy-wise choice. A concrete basement needs little heat or airconditioning And concrete walls are easily insulated.

Quality Doesn't Cost

Economically, concrete is a good investment. A concrete basement will add years of life to the foundation and considerable dollars to the resale value of your building.

Add up the advantages. There's simply no alternative to quality controlled concrete. The best basement building material.

840 - OBITUARIES

OBORNE Leroy (Roy) Oborne, beloved husband of Edith Oborne of Black Diamond. passed away at the Bow Valley Centre on August 17, 1995, age of 89 years. Besides his loving wife, Leroy is survived by 3 sons and 3 daughters-inlaw, Allan and Myrna Oborne of Black Diamond, Boyd and Edna Oborne and Gordon and Jennifer Oborne, all of Cremona, as well as 12 grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren. Leroy was eased by his parents Clarence and Mary Jane Oborne and 2 brothers, Ralph and Merril Oborne. A memorial service was held at Turner Valley United Church on Monday, August 21, 1995 at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Bruce McIntyre of the Carstairs United Church and the Rev. Frank Cummins of the Cremona Congregational Church officiating. Inumment to follow at the Black Diamond Cemetery 20-1tp

Annie (Kendrick) Echlin passed away August 19, 1995 at Didsbury and was in her 98th year. She was born February 18, 1897 in Ancaster, Ontario, one of 11 children born to George and Jessie Kendrick. Annie came west to Alberta in 1918, to the east Innisfail area, to keep house for 3 bachelor brothers. In 1921-22 she was enrolled in Calgary Normal School, following graduation she taught school at Mount Pleasant and Milnerton school districts in the Knee Hill Valley area east of Innisfail. Many times she would have over twenty students, in all grades 1 to 9 inclusive and rode her horse over 12 miles to school, summer and winter On November 11, 1925 Annie was united in marriage to Leslie Echlin of Olds. The couple farmed for a time at Craigmyle, AB, before permanently moving back to Olds area where they homesteaded SE 17-33-R2-W5 (where Wayne Notley now lives.) Annie was always an avid gardener and enjoyed being able to enter flowers and vegetable exhibits at the annual Olds Fair, bringing home winning ribbons most times. She also had a true "artist's eye", and enjoyed painting in water colors as well as oils. This was her special hobby in which she took much pleasure during her retirement years in White Rock BC. Annie was a past member of the Glamis W.I., Alberta Teachers Assoc. and the Olds Handicraft Assoc. From 1947-53, she returned to the classroom and taught school in the local districts of Harmattan, Berrydale and Vale View. In 1966, Annie and Leslie retired to White Rock, B.C. where they enjoyed their retirement, until Leslie's health began to fail and he passed away in White Rock on April 4, 1975 at 82 years of age. In 1976, Annie returned to Alberta and lived at Mount View Lodge, Olds until 1982. From that time until her passing, she was a resident of Mountain View Health Care Centre, Long Term Care Unit (now known as Didsbury District Health Services), Didsbury, AB. For the 13 years Annie lived within the LTC Units in Didsbury, she received exceptional service and the very best of care, for which her family will be eternally grateful. Annie was predeceased by her husband, Leslie and 9 of her 10 brothers and sisters. She is survived by her 2 children; G.H. (Harry) Echlin of Airdrie, AB and June Gardin (Leo) of R.R. 1, Bowden; 4 grandchildren and one great grandson, Bill; one sister Bertha Simpson, Brantford, ON and one sister-in-law Mildred Kendrick, Ancaster, ON, plus several nieces and nephews and families in Alberta, Ontario, B.C. and Engelwood, Colorado USA, Memorial services were held Wednesday, August 23, 1995 at Mountain View Funeral Chapel, Olds. Cremation with internment later at Hainstock Cemetery. If desired, donations may be made to the local chapter of the Alzheimer's Society. Mountain View Funeral Chapels, Olds, entrusted with arrangements 20-1tc

Well, I'll never know if ol' St. Pete Is good at takin' orders But if he lets my Dad run the show Dad'll roar at all the sort-

But you know, my Dad and ol' St. Pete They're really bound to clash And Dad will roar like thunder And St. Pete a lightning flash.

Well, there is no doubt that Dad's the boss Where men and cows do battle, Cuz every time the thunder roars I know Dad's sortin' cattle.

Morrie MacIntosh Goetjen (June, 1994)

Goetjen will be reciting this and other pieces of his work at PaSu Farm's Western BBQ night on September 2 and at a vestern BBQ at Prince's Island Park in Calgary on September 3.

Hypothermia

In our often-frigid climate, everyone should know the signs of overexposure to the cold: shivering, slurred speech, stumbling and drowsiness. As hypothermia gets worse, shivering may stop, followed by unconsciousness and stopped breathing. If you find someone suffering from hypothermia, follow these steps:

- · Gently move the person to shelter. Quick movement or rough handling may upset the rhythm of the heart.
- · Monitor breathing. If it stops, give artificial respiration.
- · Remove wet clothing and wrap the person in warm, dry covers.
- * If the person is conscious, give him or her warm, sweet drinks - avoid alcohol and caffeine.
- · If the person is unconscious, get medical help quickly. Prevent further leat loss with blankets. Call your local St. John Ambulance office for more information on first aid. CPR and health promotion.

DIET HINT OF THE DAY

BUDDY VICTOR, DIRECTOR WEIGHT WATCHERS

There Are No Miracles

They're still doing it to us after all these years! Every magazine stand promises a dozen difreferent miraculous ways to lose weight "almost overnight"! Sadly, many people try these radical diets and products and may even lose a few pounds at first. But some of the fads are unhealthy or even dangerous; others are simply unrealistic. The healthiest way to lose weight, and keep it off permanently, is to follow a weight loss program that uses nutritious foods you can buy at your supermarket; while following a regular exercise plan.

Monet exhibition in Chicago largest ever mounted

The largest retrospective of works of French impressionist painter Claude Monet ever mounted is expected to bring more than half a million visitors to Chicago, Illinois summer

The exhibition follows the successful mounting Gustave Caillebotte: Urban Impressionist which attracted scores of thousands to the city. Both exhibitions were organized by the Art Institute of Chicago

Claude Monet: 1840-1926 will run July 22 - November 26, 1995, with 161 works, primarily paintings, gathered from around the world.

Many are from private collections and have rarely been on public view. Works have been selected that Monet himself indicated were among his favourites, reuniting, for example, around 30 pieces that were shown in the largest Monet exhibition ever held under the artist's own supervision, in 1989

The grand scope of Claude Monet: 1840-1926 will bring together the master's best-known paintings with seldom-seen surprising, pictures to illuminate some of his most remarkable achievements.

Caillebotte and Monet had close personal and professional relationship. In February 1876 - soon after Renoir and the artist and collector Henri Rouart invited Caillebotte participate in what was to be the second Impressionist exhibition - Monet recorded in his account books that he had sold several paintings to "M. This Caillebotte painter". was a windfall for Monet, whose serious collectors then could be counted on the fingers of one hand, and the ship Caillebotte continually bought Monet's paintings at generous prices. He purchased paint, canvases, and frames for him, as well as food; and even provided living and painting quarters for him near the same Place de l'Europe.

The Art Institute of Chicago will be working with area hotels, travel agents, and tour operators, as well as Illinois

Evangel assembly choir to rock the house

Special to the Review

Johnny T. Collins, Sr., pastor of the Edmonton Community Worship Hour church and Associate Chaplain of the Edmonton Eskimos has an-nounced Edmonton's Best Gospelfest, September 1, 1995, at 6:30 p.m. The venue will be the Beulah Alliance Church, 17504 - 98th A. Avenue

In harmony with the 200th birthday of Edmonton, ECWH will celebrate her 6th Church Anniversary: a multicultural congregation, coming from many nations. Special guest choir director and producer will be Rev. Frank Wilson of Los Angeles, California.

"As a Motown record producer and songwriter, Frank sold more than 40 million records of popular music and received more than 20 platinum and gold record awards and five Grammies", said Pas tor Collins. In 1980, Rev. Wilson decided to leave the popular music industry and pursue a ministry that would help entertainers to begin a faith walk with Christ.

Rev. Collins, who has known Frank for twenty years said: "When he (Frank) gave his life to the Lord, he continued to be an artist of excellence. He produced three Grammy winning albums for the Mighty Clouds Frank's pastor is Dr. Hill of the Mount Zion

McCoy said the golfers topped off their day with a steak barbeque.

Grizzlys name new assistant coach

Special to the Review

The Olds Grizzlys' Head Coach Cliff Murphy has an-nounced the appointment of a new Assistant Coach for the 1995-96 season. Yancy Zelko will join the Grizzlys August 29 in time for Rookie Camp. Zelko comes to the Grizzlys from the Merritt Centennials of the BCJHL where he was Assistant Coach and Director of Marketing. Prior to Merritt, Zelko was Head Coach of the Saskatoon Royals (Jr. B) and Saskatoon Flyers (Midget AA).

In other Grizzlys news, Murphy also announced that fourteen of last year's eligible will return to Grizzlys for the 95-96 season. Returning are: Jim Lawrence, Richard Latimer, Dan Heilman, Lucas Gergel, Paul Fioroni, Jon Pouzar, Jeramie Heistad, Dustin Borbandy, Jason Dageforde, Mike Johnston, Brett Fizzell, Steven Wagner and Tyler Barabonoff.

Kevin MacDonald will attend the Regina Pats training camp

Brett Fizzell will undergo surgery August 29 to cor rect an injury suffered during playoffs last season. Tomas Zelenka, a twenty ear-old from Litvinov in the Czech Republic will join the Grizzlys for the 95-96 season. Zelenka scored 25 goals and 35 assists in 48 games for Litvinov of the Czech National Junior League last season.

An unforgettable marine tapestry off Puerto Rico

If you are into diving and finding those "remote locations harder and harder to find, it's time you looked at Puerto Rico.

The island is one of the most accessible of the Caribbean islands and has a diving infrastructure that can still be classified as personal

There are dozens of fabulous locations to chose from and, if you're like us, you'll run out of time before you've explored even a percentage of themand it won't be overcrowded.

Some 10,000 visitors go diving off Puerto Rico each year. Compare that to 65,000 in the Cayman Islands, or 400,000 at Florida Keys.

The size of the island, 160 km long by 56 km wide, makes it an ideal place to vary your dives daily and to take in some of the wonderful scenery of an island settled by the Spanish nearly 500 years ago.

We planned a diving safari that took us around the island and to some of the most enchanting underwater scenery in the world.

Accommodation en route varies from world class luxurious to dive lodge, including a chance to sample the paradores, unique country inns and bed and breakfasts

Diving temperatures match the temperature of the air, rarely below 28C and even less often above 26C. Visibility averages 24-26 metres and on good days you can see 35 metres or more.

Diving skills needed are from novice through intermediate to diving advanced, and instruction is available at may of the larger resorts.

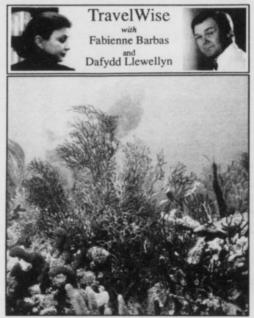

The variety of diving is too much to cover in one column or in a two week trip. If you are like us, as soon as you leave you will be planning your next trip. So today we'll deal with perhaps the most appealing of the world class dives at La Parguera. This is a bay that literally glows in the night as billions of bioluminescent micro-organisms produce an underwater fireworks display.

For divers there is an eye popping under water "wall" over 35 km long.

Pillar coral, rare throughout the Caribbean, thrive here There are massive hedgerows of black coral and 30 metre cliff faces dropping sheer into the 1800 metre abyss below

On this million dollar wall

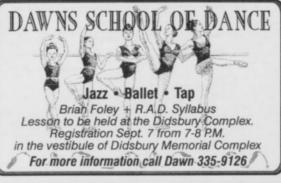

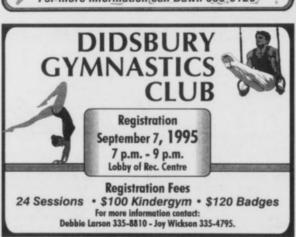

you find herds of red lipped blennis sitting on and under Elkhorn. You'll see mushrooms of star coral, 3-5 metres in diameter, looming five or more metres off the bottom with squirrel fish huddled under thin parasol-like eves, dodging colonies of delicate lace coral.

Elsewhere you'll find nurse sharks, gorgonian, staghorn and mounding coral and acres of sand dollars. Hundreds of species of multi-colored fish including red hinds, chromis, and black durgons form the threads of an unforgettable marine tapestry.

Cassidy may visit CFR in two events

Special to the Review

Veteran two-event cowboy Greg Cassidy spent the past two weekends proving that he's still got what it takes to leave the competition in the dust.

Cassidy had a banner week end in Jasper, AB and High Level, AB placing in the money in both steer wrestling and calf roping. He took first in the steer wrestling at the Jasper Lions Pro Rodeo, August 17-20, and third in the calf roping. At the High Level Pro Rodeo August 19-20, he placed fifth in the steerwrestling and fourth in the calf roping. He won $2,063 for the weekend and moved within CFR contention in both events. August was a lucky month for Cassidy - he also took first in the steer wrestling at the Lethbridge Whoopup Days and tied for second in the calf roping at the Cranbrook Pro Rodeo in Cranbrook BC earlier in the month.

Cassidy, a professional competitor since 1978, has reached the CFR in calf roping nine times and in the steer wrestling seven times and, at this rate will find himself in the Canadian Finals once again.

Cassidy's travelling partner Caroline, AB cowboy Gerald Willsie, also made a good showing in both rodeos. He won the steer wrestling, placed second in the calf roping at High Level and took fourth spot in the calf roping at Jasper. His weekend earnings amounted to a more than respectable $2,216. In Jasper, Rod Warren of Valleyview, AB won the saddle bronc event, with an 81-point ride on Harvey Northcott's Matt Dillon Skoal. Patricia, AB's Cam Morris beat all competi-tion in the bareback riding on Young Blood Skoal. Travis Houff of Medicine Hat, AB won the calf roping in 8.9 seconds, and Wes Cyr's 80 points won top spot in the bull riding on Game Face. The Nanton, cowboy came in ahead of the 79 points garnered by both Jason Matlock of Sundre, AB on Turbo Teddy and Kevin Wright of Lethbridge, AB on Skoal Dirty Harry. Hudson Hope, BC's Debbie Guelly edged out Sandi Emond of Malta, MT. with 13.02 seconds in the bar

In High Level, 76 points were enough to give Lance Mulvahill of Progress, BC the win in the saddle brone aboard Peters and Sons' Oregon Jack, for win-nings of $1,078. Travis Whiteside of Turner Valley, AB won $926 with his 73-point bareback ride on Indian Sugar. Foremost, AB's Clark Hughson left with $1,137 in the calf roping and bull rider Trevor Walker of Val Marie, SK rode Twizzler for 77 points and first place. Shawn Henry of Williams Lake, BC had a profitable week-end in the saddle brone, riding Northcott's Shorty to a third place tie in Jasper and Peters and Sons' Black Wolf for a fourth place tie in High Level. He also shared a position in the money - second this time at the Pincher Creek, AB Fair and Rodeo, August 18-20. On board Big Stone Rodeo's Red Roan Skoal, Henry scored 80 points, the same score that Jay Louis of Vernon, BC managed on the same horse. The split was worth $610 for each cow

Also in Pincher Creek, Ma-ole Creek, SK's Dan Black rode Sundown Copenhagen in the saddle brone for 84 points and first place. Cam Morris was not content with a win in Jasper and took first in the bareback nere as well, on Chester's Skoal Bandit. He had to share the top spot with Cochrane's Don Blishen, however, who had a good day on the same horse Darren Shaw of Cardston, AB was first in calf roping, a half second ahead of Medicine Hat, AB's Troy Houff. Tom Copithorne of Calgary, AB, was winner in steer wrestling and Chris Self of Rainer, AB was the top bull rider with 87 points on Short Circuit. Leslie Schlosser of Nanton, AB, took top money in the barrels ahead of Sandi Emond and Madden, AB's Amie Stone.
